SELF-STUDY REVIEW COMMITTEE

D. Chen-Maynard, Natural Sciences

VACANT, Education

VACANT, BPA

VACANT, Social and Behavioral Sciences not from Social Science

Faculty representatives are appointed by the Executive Committee, Faculty Senate.

Contact person is J. Zorn, Associate Provost, Academic Programs.

University Self-Study Review Committee:

The Self-Study Review Committee will consist of four faculty from outside the college under review, one college dean (usually chosen from the college reviewed the previous year), and one administrative representative.

The faculty will be selected, one from each college (exclusive of the college currently being reviewed), by the Executive Committee of the Faculty Senate from among the senior faculty. The college dean and administrative representative will be appointed by the President. The committee will elect its own chair and proceed according to steps its members agree upon.

Appointments to this committee will be for one year. However, committee members may be reappointed.

Functions of University Self-Study Review Committee:

1. To approve external reviewers nominated by programs,
2. To approve and review document drafts,
3. To assist writing and revision or report where needed,
4. To note (and where possible reconcile) discrepancies between the program's views and the conclusions and recommendations of the outside consultant,
5. To summarize the department and college findings,
6. To make recommendations to the Dean, Provost, President, and Budget/Planning committees,
7. To report to the Faculty Senate.

The Report of the University Review Committee should include discussion of the following:

1. Does the department culture encourage and reward high-quality teaching?
2. Are department teaching loads reasonably similar to those at comparable universities?

3. Are the department's grading practices reasonably similar to those of the College and University? If not, is there a reasonable justification for the deviation?
4. An overall evaluation of the unit's efforts to promote teaching and learning. This should include a discussion of the department's strengths and weaknesses.
5. Is the department provided with services and resources adequate to its mission, goals, and objectives?
6. Suggestions about how the program could improve its performance.

The Review Process:

The self-study representatives and the college dean will meet, following the annual calendar (see Appendix II, "Self-Study Deadline Calendar"), with the Associate Provost for Academic Programs, (the campus-wide self-study coordinator) for orientation, directions and questions. At that time, data from Institutional Research and Academic Programs offices will be supplied. (See Appendix III, "Data to be Included in Self-study Reports.")

Self-Study reports will be written by the end of fall term. Drafts will be reviewed and revised during December. The final version of report will be completed by mid-January and distributed. Each department/program report will be reviewed by all members of that department/program, the College Dean, the Dean of Graduate Studies (where master's degrees are offered) and the Associate Provost for Academic Programs. The report will then be forwarded to the University Self-Study Review Committee, an ad hoc committee of the Faculty Senate. This committee will read all department, program and college reports, meet with those under review, ensure the general accuracy and consistency of these self-study reports, and prepare a brief report of its major findings and recommendations, including results of annual reviews of outcomes assessments.

A summary statement for each department/program will be prepared by members of the University-level Self-Study Committee and reviewed by the College Dean prior to being forwarded to the President, Provost, and Budget/Planning Committee. The Associate Provost for Academic Programs will further summarize the findings and report them to the Chancellor's Office for presentation to the CSU Board of Trustees.
